Letter Sent by UArizona Divest to the U of A Board of Trustees, 1/13/2021

A letter from student group UArizona Divest to the university Board of Trustees demanding they divest from fossil fuels and detailing why it is so important that they do.

Dear President & CEO Roczniak and the University of Arizona Foundation Board of Trustees:

The climate crisis is upon us. We are standing on the precipice of irreversible climate change that has and will continue to affect our planet for decades [Appendix A]. As UArizona students and alumni, we look to this institution to ensure its students have an inhabitable planet and the opportunity to realize their full potential. As UArizona rebrands as an environmental leader, divestment and a rapid transition to renewable energy investments must be a university priority.

Climate change presents a systemic financial risk to capital markets under business as usual. Devastating natural disasters, including more frequent and intense droughts, wildfires, and rising sea levels, will depress real estate values and damage local economies. Scientists have warned that without action, climate-induced habitat loss will drastically increase zoonotic disease transmission, and thus the risk of future pandemics. Climate impacts such as these aren't priced into the market due to a lack of public company disclosures, representing a "systemic financial crisis in slow motion." Continued fossil fuel use drives these processes, cementing the events of 2020 as a new normal.

There is strong financial impetus to divest. Fossil fuel investments do not generate the same financial returns as they once did and come with growing risks [Appendix B]. According to the Institute for Energy Economics and Financial Analysis, stability for oil and gas companies is declining due to volatility in revenue from political interference and price swings. Research from the Association of American Law Schools also shows that divestment has no near term impact on fund performance and does not violate fiduciary duty.

Financial investment plays a major role in climate change, yet UArizona continues to invest in companies which are engaging in business as usual. We must shift our mindset about economic policies if we are to have a liveable future. As such, we the undersigned UArizona students and alumni have the following requests:

- 1) The University of Arizona Foundation pursues a path of complete divestment by 2025 and commits to no further investments from the fossil fuel industry from this point on.
- 2) The University of Arizona and the University of Arizona Foundation strengthen sustainable and socially conscious (ESG) investment strategies and accountability.

<https://ncac.org/wp-content/uploads/2017/11/Student-Protest-Rights.pdf>

Describes risky versus protected behaviors for student protesters.

FIRST AMENDMENT RIGHTS for STUDENT PROTESTERS

The First Amendment
Congress shall make no law... abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW
The First Amendment doesn't end "at the schoolhouse gates."
But the law does allow public schools to set their own codes and policies.
Students have a constitutional right to participate in non-disruptive protests during the school day. This means that school officials cannot retaliate against or discipline student protesters unless the protests cause, or are reasonably expected to cause, the disruption of school events or make it impossible for school officials to maintain order. Missing class is usually punishable. But punishments cannot be harsher because you missed class to protest or because of your political beliefs.

PROTECTED
Unpopular statements
Or statements that school officials disagree with. You cannot be disciplined for the content of your protest

RISKY*
*What this really means:
Your school is allowed to punish you for it.
Advocating violence. Just don't.
You can't "encourage unlawful activity," including...
